

NCUIH Celebrates 25 Years of Native American LifeLines' Service to Urban Native Communities

Category: Policy Blog

written by River Carroll | November 20, 2025

HONORING
25 YEARS
of Native American LifeLines

Celebrating a quarter-century of commitment to urban Native health, community strength, and cultural care.

NCUIH congratulates Native American LifeLines for 25 years of dedicated service.

Native American LifeLines \(NAL\) is celebrating 25 years of serving Native people in Baltimore and Boston. For a generation, NAL has worked to strengthen wellness and belonging for urban Native communities in both the Mid-Atlantic and Northeast regions through culturally grounded care and community connection.

Founded with a mission to promote health and social resiliency within urban Native communities, NAL applies principles of trauma informed care to provide culturally centered behavioral health, dental, outreach and referral services. Across both sites, NAL has fostered a place where Native people can gather, learn, access care, and remain connected to their identities.

NCUIH honors this milestone and recognizes the leaders, staff, and community members whose dedication continues to guide NAL's impact.

Learn more about Native American LifeLines at nativeamericanlifelines.org